COURT REVERSES ITSELF

Back in our August 1998 issue we printed "Buying Testimony...Not!" about how a federal district court finally upheld US Code Section 201(c)(2) of Title 18, which reads: "Whoever [according to the dictionary, 'whoever' means 'No matter who']...directly or indirectly, gives, offers or promises anything of value to any person, for or because of testimony under oath or affirmation given or to be given by such person as a witness upon a trial, hearing, or other proceeding, before any court...authorized by the laws of the United States to hear in evidence or take testimony...shall be fined under this title or imprisoned for not more than two years, or both." In other words, plea bargains offered by prosecutors to defendants in exchange for their testimony against others is blatantly illegal.

Needless to say the decision sent shock waves throughout the judiciary--all the way to the Department of Justice. However, this momentary lapse of sanity didn't last very long, and on January 8, 1999 the 10th Circuit Court of Appeals in a 9 to 3 decision overturned the lower court's ruling. So once again the word "whoever" excludes federal or state prosecutors -- though Title 18 makes no such distinction. The appeals court made that distinction via judicial fiat, hearkening back to the pre-Magna Carta days of King John when the monarch was the supreme power: "Statutes of general purport do not apply to the United States unless Congress makes the application clear and indisputable," says the 10th Circuit, citing a 1873 case that "it is a familiar principle that the King is not bound by any act of Parliament unless he be named therein by special and particular words."

According to the 10th Circuit, federal prosecutors are not bound by the law against bribing witnesses, because they serve as alter ego for the government and "the word 'whoever' connotes a being," whereas "the U.S. is an inanimate entity, not a being. The word 'whatever' is used commonly to refer to an inanimate object. Therefore, construing 'whoever' to include the government is semantically anomalous."

In other words, "whoever" doesn't mean "whoever" if the "whoever" is an officer of the government. This Clintonesque wordplay is necessary because, as the court acknowledges, "no practice is more ingrained in our criminal justice system" than convicting people with purchased testimony.

Until the Glorious Revolution when Parliament established the supremacy of law over the sovereign, kings dealt with enemies by bribing or compelling witnesses to testify against them. When law rather than the king's government was supreme, it became a maxim that testimony purchased with reward has no standing in court.

So, we're right back to where we started. The government can bribe witnesses with "deals" --standard procedure for the King--a felony for us. Enforcement of 18 USC 201(c)(2) would grind their conveyor belt judicial system to a halt. So the courts simply choose not to enforce a law they find disagreeable or a nuisance.

What was said in The Growth of the American Republic concerning slavery in the South now applies to prosecutors offering plea bargains. The practice has become "...so necessary that it ceased to appear evil."

The offering of deals in exchange for "testimony" is so common that corrupt defendants are referred to as "The Liar's Club" by police and lawyers. Everyone knows it's a sham and everyone knows that the plea bargaining witness is lying to save his ass.

PBS recently aired a documentary on this very subject. One ex-prisoner, who refused to snitch on friends in exchange for a plea bargain, explained that prisoners with 10, 20, 30-year sentences would read the newspapers looking for a story of a drug bust. When they found one they would immediately call the State Attorney General's office and offer "testimony" against the people involved, in exchange for a reduced sentence-- though they don't have a clue as to who these people are! They simply want to get out of prison and they'll snitch on anyone to do it --and it works!

Now this is where it gets scary. A person busted for drug crimes will testify against anyone for a reduced sentence and his testimony will be accepted in court in lieu of physical evidence. His testimony is the evidence! If a snitch says he saw 10 pounds of cocaine in your house--you had 10 pounds of cocaine in your house and you will go to prison based solely on his testimony. Not to mention a perverted judicial system in general, this is because the courts will not uphold US Code Sect. 201, Title 18.

A caller to the Clay Douglas radio program told the story of a neighbor of his who is now serving a life sentence based on the testimony of a snitch who said he saw bales of marijuana hidden in his barn. The caller's wife worked at this same barn on a daily basis taking care of the horses. She was willing to testify that she never saw marijuana in the barn but wasn't allowed to.

Another ploy used by a prosecutor was to indict a mother for conspiracy to sell drugs because her drug dealing son was living with her at the time. The prosecutor was hoping that the indictment would force her son out of hiding. The prosecutor, smiling, said he was hoping that the Grand Jury wouldn't indict her because he knew she was innocent. But the mother was indicted and went to jail. The prosecutor said, smiling, "I guess I did my job too well."

The documentary also revealed that the prison population in the US is larger than the population of 5 states.

Closing note: Thomas Paine once said that the sign of a well governed nation is low taxes and empty prisons. We've long since passed those benchmarks.

NRA TO FIGHT FOR GUN MAKERS

"The National Rifle Association is mounting a full-scale lobbying campaign in Congress and at least six key states with the aim of enacting legislation to quell the wave of lawsuits filed by city governments against gun manufacturers," reported The Washington Post, Jan. 15, 1999.

What's surprising is that the NRA, originally, wasn't going to get involved in this issue at all. "Our posture was that we represent the consumer, the owner, not the manufacturers, but we decided we could not just sit back and watch this effort to destroy the American gun industry and deprive our members of their rights," said James Baker, chief lobbyist for the NRA.

This is mind-boggling. These lawsuits could drive many of the top gun manufacturers out of business and the NRA has to think twice about getting involved. Unbelievable!

The Post said, "The NRA's strategy marks a clear turnabout in the organization's position, which just a few weeks ago was to offer no comment on the city lawsuits and refer inquiries to the gun manufacturing companies and their representatives."

Said Kristen Rand, director of federal policy at the Violence Policy Center, "The fact that the NRA chose to get involved shows that the industry really feels imperiled."

Another worry is that even if the NRA were successful in getting legislation passed by the Congress it'll only be vetoed by our gun-hating president. This just shows how bad things have gotten when Americans want to sue their own Rights out of existence.

The firearms industry still has a few friends in government, however. Louisiana Governor Mike Foster, wants to punish those who use guns in crimes rather than the firearms industry.

Cheney Joseph, executive counsel for the governor, is "...working on proposed laws that would require criminals to do jail time if they wield a gun while committing a crime. The gun would not have to be fired.

"Under consideration is a plan to set minimum sentence that would increase if the gun is fired and increase more if anyone is hurt or killed," reported Marsha Shuler, Capitol News Bureau.

"The governor is a strong advocate of the right of law-abiding citizens to have firearms and even carry them for self-protection. But he also believes that those who abuse the right need to be severely punished," said Joseph.

New Orleans' decision to sue firearms manufacturers has already cost them financially. The National Shooting Sports Foundation has given notice that New Orleans has been dropped for their annual Shooting, Hunting and Outdoor Tradeshow (SHOT) scheduled to be held at the Ernest N. Morial Convention Center in the year 2000 --it's the largest firearms convention in the world. The trade show would have brought in an estimated 30,000 people and approximately $145 million overall to the city. "It's obvious it's a pretty difficult situation," said Phil Franco, president of the New Orleans Metropolitan Convention and Visitors Bureau.

One episode that won't help New Orleans' lawsuit against gun makers was the discovery that city police traded in 7,200 confiscated weapons for 1,700 new Glock service pistols. "To learn that the city has exported 7,000 guns seized from the street criminals to other parts of the country is really mind boggling and the height of hypocrisy," said Rafael Goyeneche, president of the Metropolitan Crime Commission of New Orleans. He also said that the city of New Orleans could one day find itself a defendant in a lawsuit not unlike the one it is leveling against gun manufacturers, if one of the guns sold is used in a crime.

Said Glock vice president Paul Junnuzzo, "...city officials were being hypocritical by simultaneously trading guns and suing gun manufacturers," reported the AP.

On an up-note: (not easy after reading the above) California Superior Court Judge Richard Hodge ordered the plaintiffs in the case Dix v. Beretta USA Corp. "...to pay Beretta for costs incurred by the company by the plaintiffs with the assistance of Handgun Control, Inc. and San Francisco law firm of Hersh & Hersh. The Dix case received national publicity when the parents of a teenage youth shot by a friend sued the firearms manufacturer on the theory that the pistol used in the accident should have included 'smart gun' technology or an internal locking mechanism to prevent its misuse," reported a Beretta press release.

Said Jeff Reh, general counsel for Beretta, "Handgun Control, Inc's consistent failure in the Dix case should stand as notice to other litigants that this organization is out of touch with the law and with the merits of these cases. During the Dix case, Beretta presented its concerns about the safety and feasibility of internal locking devices for handguns and the jury agreed with our reservations about this technology. The jury also overwhelmingly determined that the responsibility for safe storage of any firearm lies with the owner, not with the original manufacturer of the gun."

"More importantly, all potential litigants in cases of this type—including mayors of cities which might be contemplating filing lawsuits against the firearms industry—should note that our industry will aggressively defend itself and will seek reimbursement of litigation costs. Any city which thinks that it can sue the firearms industry without financial risk to itself is mistaken."

Closing note: Concerning the lawsuit filed against gun wholesalers and manufacturers in New York judge Jack B. Weinstein dismissed all charges against the gun wholesalers claiming it was "double dipping." Attorneys for the plaintiffs agreed. Now the manufacturers stand alone.

The latest city to jump on the lawsuit band wagon is Bridgeport, Conn., which announced Jan. 27, 1999 a $100 million lawsuit against Smith & Wesson and Ruger. "By taking this action, we are saying to the handgun industry, 'From now on, you are responsible for the costs associated with your dangerous product, not Bridgeport families,'" pontificated Bridgeport's mayor Joe Ganim at a press conference.

The lawsuit claims that manufacturers "...negligently manufactured their products by not making them as safe as technology would allow."

The Chicago Tribune reported that by the end of this summer an estimated 40 to 50 cities will have filed suit against firearms manufacturers.

"There may be a lot of cities filing in the spring, but there will be different lawsuits individually tailored to the laws and problems, facts and circumstances of each jurisdiction," said Philadelphia mayor Edward Rendell, who heads the US Conference of Mayors' gun-violence task force.

MACHINE GUN ANYONE?

It has been unlawful since 1934 (The National Firearms Act) for civilians to own machine guns without special permission from the US Treasury Department. Machine guns are subject to a $200 tax every time their ownership changes from one federally registered owner to another. Each new weapon is subject to a manufacturing tax, and must be registered with the Bureau of Alcohol Tobacco and Firearms (BATF) in its National Firearms Registry.

To become a registered owner, a complete FBI background investigation is done, as to any criminal history or tendencies toward violence, and an application must be submitted to the BATF along with two sets of fingerprints, a recent photo, and sworn affidavit that transfer of the NFA firearm is of "reasonable necessity" and that the sale to and possession of the weapon by the applicant "would be consistent with public safety."

Because the transfer tax for one weapon is just as high as the cost of a Class III dealer's license, many machine gun enthusiasts, if they want to buy more than one weapon, opt for a dealer's license also. The Class III FFL (Federal Firearms License) is good for three years, and a renewal fee of $90 must be paid in order to maintain the license every three years. Even with a dealer's license transfer taxes must still be paid, but some of the paperwork involved in the transfer is reduced, such as for the background investigation.

Since the Firearms Owners' Protection Act of May 19, 1986, no new machine guns have been available to Class III licensed civilians. Machine guns which were manufactured prior to that date are regulated under the National

A government that does not follow the written laws of the country, is a government that will remove the rights and liberties of the people. Our Constitution does not allow for this.

Firearms Act. Those manufactured after the ban cannot be sold even to civilians who are already licensed to own machine guns.

Killer Fungus

In its never-ending battle against drugs, Washington passed a bill last year to develop an anti-marijuana fungus, called 'Mycoherbicides' that will cost taxpayers $23 million.

The US plans to use the new fungus in Columbia, Peru and Bolivia.

Libertarian Party National Director Steve Dasbach has a better idea than using fungus. "Legalize," said Dasbach. He was referring to the fact that in the Netherlands, where marijuana has been decriminalized, only 15.6% of Dutch adults have tried it. In the US on the other hand it's 32.9%.

"Treating adults like adults and letting them make decisions about how to live their lives seems to be a stronger anti-drug effect than any killer fungus. Wouldn't it be ironic if liberty was a more effective anti-drug program than deadly mycoherbicides?"

He also pointed out that "No fungus is smart enough to tell the difference between legal hemp and illegal marijuana. This fungus could be the biological warfare equivalent of carpet bombing--killing whatever is in its path."

WATER WARS IN THE FUTURE?

"I'm completely convinced that in the future, there will be a very concentrated conflict over the use of limited resources. Everybody knows that we have an increase in population, but we do not have a corresponding increase in drinking water, so the result is conflict. Drinking water may be the peace policy of the future. Handling water problems more carefully may prove to be the disarmament instruments of the future. I'm quite sure that this is not an overestimation," said Mr. Klaus Toper, director general of the United Nations Environment Programme (UNEP).

The US and Canada have the largest bodies of fresh water in the world--the Great Lakes. Guess what will be declared a UN "biosphere reserve" in the future? And don't forget the aqua reserve here in New Jersey's "Pinelands International Biosphere Reserve" that contains 17 trillion gallons of fresh water.

Let's see, if the UN controls the water in the New Jersey Pinelands... Hmm...

PILOTS QUIT SERVICE OVER ANTHRAX VACCINATIONS

"Nine pilots from the 103rd Fighter Wing of the Connecticut Air National Guard--about 25 percent of its combat-ready fighter force--have resigned from flying rather than take the Pentagon's mandatory anthrax vaccinations, expressing concerns about possible health effects and questioning its value as a defense against the biological weapon," reported the Baltimore Sun Jan. 15, 1999.

"There was an ultimatum: Get your shots or get grounded," said 17-year veteran Major Dom Possemato. "I'm willing to let the Iraqis take potshots as me and put me in a grave. I'm not willing to let my country do that. We're falling on our swords to get the word out. This is not well-tested. This is not well-proven."

Pentagon spokesman Jim Turner said that the anthrax vaccine is safe and was approved by the Food and Drug Administration back in the 1970s. Defense Secretary William Cohen has ordered all active servicemen and reservists to be inoculated.

One of the grounded pilots complained that "...the anthrax vaccine was developed for ranchers who come into contact with anthrax through the skin, not by a massive cloud." He also said that the Iraqis could develop other strains of anthrax rendering the vaccine worthless.

All of the pilots were veterans of Desert Storm, Bosnia and the Iraqi no-fly zone.

AUSTRALIAN GUN-GRAB FAILURE

The Australian government's attempt to make Australia a gun-free country has failed--big time!

"The $500 million national gun buy-back scheme has failed," Queensland's foremost police weapons expert says.

"Inspector John McCoomb says gun laws introduced after the 1996 Port Arthur massacre have sent the trade underground," reported Chris Griffith in Australia's The Sunday Mail Jan. 24, 1999.

McCoomb said that the black market in firearms is thriving and anyone can now buy them. (Are you listening, Washington?)

It also seems that there is a backlash of resentment by Australian citizens over the gun-grab. One police station in Sidney came under fire from the very firearms that were supposed to be turned in. Inspector McCoomb admitted that there has been an increase in gun related incidents and that half of the guns in Queenlands are now illegally held. "Owners have opted to go outside the system. Crimes involving guns have soared during and since the buyback," said McCoomb. (Are you listening Washington?)

In 1997, the year of the buyback, robberies involving guns rose 39%, assaults with guns rose 28%.

Here's another problem: "Australian Customs acknowledges only a fraction of containers entering the country are searched for illegal weapons. Customs spokesman Leon Bedington said one inspector would need eight days to check a container load thoroughly." (Are you listening Washington?)

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA CODE

ANNOTATED

VOLUME 5A

1996 REPLACEMENT

Chapter 3. Adultery

22-301 Definition and penalty. [Page 21]

Whoever commits adultery in the District shall, on conviction thereof, be punished by a fine not exceeding $500, or by imprisonment not exceeding 180 days, or both; and when the act is committed between a married person and a person who is unmarried both parties to such act shall be deemed guilty of adultery. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1332, ch. 854, 874; 1973 Ed., 22-301; May 21, 1994, D.C. Law 10-119, 2(d), 41 DCR 1639; Aug. 20, 1994, D.C. Law 10-151, 105(b), 41 DCR 2608.)

Legislative history of Law 10-151.--Law 10-151, the "Omnibus Criminal Justice Reform Amendment Act of 1994," was introduced in Council and assigned Bill No. 10-98, which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary. The Bill was adopted on the first and second readings on March 29, 1994, and April 12, 1994, respectively. Signed by the Mayor on May 4, 1994, it was assigned Act No. 10-238 and transmitted to both Houses of Congress for its review. D.C. Law 10-151 became effective on August 20, 1994.

One convicted of adultery should be sentenced under this section and not under former 316 of the federal penal code (18 USC 516), Kleindiest v. United States, 48 App. D.C. 190 (1918).

On an indictment of adultery which under the District Code is a misdemeanor and under federal penal code a felony, the accused, on his conviction, should be sentenced under the former and not the latter.

YOUNG COMMIES

Yea...they're still out there. Not your average, run-of-the-mill Communist, but little commies, or, generation-X commies. Here's the first draft of the "Youth and Students Bill of Rights". We found it on the Young Communist League web page. When you read it you'll know that there's still some heavy drug-use occurring on campuses these days. Also notice the similarities between generation-X commies and Democratic Party ideology i.e., free this, free that, etc.

1) The right to a job at a livable wage with union protection; affirmative action with goals and timetables for hiring and promotion. Paycheck to paycheck unemployment compensation, including for the first-time job seeker. Reduce the workday to 6 hours and raise the minimum wage to at least $10 an hour.

2) The right to free, quality education from nursery to university. This includes multicultural, multi-lingual curriculums. Non-racist and nonsexist education must be guaranteed. Free breakfast and lunch programs for all schools. Stipends for full-time college students.

3) The right to full equality regardless of race, nationality, sex, religion or sexual orientation. Special measures must be taken to overcome the years of racist discrimination against African Americans, Latinos and other racially and nationally oppressed peoples. Full funding to rebuild the neighborhoods in these communities. Federal laws with goals and timetables to desegregate housing and schools. Affirmative action with goals and timetables for jobs and education.

4) The right to quality, affordable housing. Every person and family must be guaranteed a home. Massive federal funding for building and renovating public housing. Federal rent control laws for privately owned buildings.

5) The right to free, quality health-care. Every individual must have universal access from birth to old age to medical care, including abortion, birth control, HIV and AIDS care, prescriptions and other medical necessities. This should be federally financed and administered by a single payer. No one can be turned away from any hospital because of lack of insurance.

6) The right to recreation, cultural and sports activities. The city, state and federal governments can build and rebuild community, state and national parks and forests. Youth centers and parks for every community with full access to pools, fields and other sports and recreational activities. Regular community and citywide concerts, dances and theater to put young musicians, writers, actors and other artists to work and provide inexpensive performances for the communities.

7) The right to live in environmentally safe, drug and crime free communities. Make corporations pay for the billions of dollars worth of toxic cleanup that they caused. Shut down CIA and army airfields that fly billions of dollars worth of cocaine and heroine. Civilian anti-corruption communities should be set up to oversee police and law enforcement corruption.

8) The constitution--guaranteed to all ages. This includes high school students whose constitutional rights have been limited by Supreme Court decisions. [Note: This is a joke. If everything they're asking for is implemented there won't be any Constitution. --Ed.]

9) All structures to oversee services or programs should be made up of trade unionists, workers, community leaders, students and young people. The radical composition should reflect our multiracial, multinational population. There should be men and women in equal numbers on such structures.

NUCLEAR THREAT IN AMERICA

"The odds are that an American city will be destroyed by a nuclear weapon within ten years, an architect of the U.N. weapons inspection program in Iraq predicted yesterday." That was the opening paragraph of a article by Post-Gazette National Affairs Correspondent Jack Kelly.

Ambassador Robert Gallucci, speaking at the World Affairs Council luncheon, said, "One of these days, one of these governments fabricates one or two nuclear weapons, gives them to a terrorist group created for this purpose. The group brings one of these bombs into Baltimore by boat, and drives one to Pittsburgh."

"And then the message comes in to the White House: Change your policy in the Middle East, or on Tuesday you lose Baltimore, and on Wednesday you lose Pittsburgh. Tuesday comes and we lose Baltimore. What does the United States do?"

Because of the breakdown of the former Soviet Union and its lack of security over "fissile material" Russia will most likely be a supplier of enriched uranium or plutonium to terrorist groups.

Kelly wrote, "It takes fissile material about the size of a softball to build a nuclear bomb. There are thousands of tons of enriched uranium and plutonium in Russia, much of it poorly secured.

"Worse, the Russian scientists who design nuclear weapons, the engineers who build them, and the soldiers who guard them are paid only sporadically, making them open to offers."

Gallucci said, "Ships, planes and trucks are also ways to deliver nuclear weapons. We don't have good defenses against those. If you want to sneak a nuclear weapon into the United States, hide it in a bale of marijuana."

DUMBING DOWN THE MILITARY

The Navy has announced that it will allow a larger percentage of high school dropouts in its service. Formerly the Army and Navy only allowed 5% of recruits who haven't completed high school into the service; now they're allowing 10%. The Marines still maintain a 5% quota.

Navy Secretary Richard Danzig also announced that physical fitness and health standards will also be lowered, to keep an additional 2000 sailors in service each year.

Our Kommander-in-Chief is doing a marvelous job, isn't he?

ANTI-GUN BILLS INTRODUCED

Here are a few House Bills you should keep your eye on.

H.R. 87. Would prohibit Internet and mail-order sales of ammunition without a license and would require FFL holders to record all sales of ammo over 1000 rounds.

H.R. 109. Designed to regulate the sale of firearms at gun shows.

H.R. 315. The Anti-gunrunning Act of 1999.

THE GOLD STRIPES

If you've been following the impeachment trial of Pres. Bill Clinton, you've noticed the four gold stripes on the right and left sleeves of Supreme Court Chief Justice William Rehnquist's judicial robe. What do those gold stripes signify, you might ask? Well, in a word nothing! Rehnquist simply wanted to jazz up his robe for appearances. So, he had gold stripes sewed on his robe just for the hell-of-it. They carry no significance whatsoever.

Knowing the mind set of supreme court chief justices don't be surprised if someday we see "King of kings and Lord of lords" stitched into his robe.

BLAST MAPS

Let's say you live ten miles from a military base that would be a sure target in the event of a nuclear attack -- what effect would the blast have where you live?

Here's how you can find out. Go to pbs.org/amex/bomb/, click on "Special features" then "Map a Nuclear Blast," then "Map a Blast." Type in the name of the area that you believe would be a target. A map will appear showing the effects of a nuclear explosion. Ground zero for a 25 megaton air blast will create a crater measuring 200 feet deep and 2000 feet across.

The feature "MapBlast" (not to be confused with Map a Blast) on this web page is an address locator. You type in an address and MapBlast will give you a map to that location.

TIME MAGAZINE'S "PERSON OF THE CENTURY"

Time magazine is taking a poll on the "Person of the Century":

- 1) Jesus Christ 41.37%
- 2) Ric Flair 11.12%
- 3) Adolf Hitler 10.63%
- 4) John Flansburgh 9.40%
- 5) Prophet Mohammed 7.45%
- 6) Mohandas Gandhi 5.03%
- 7) Billy Graham 1.57%
- 7) Mustafa Kemal Ataturk 1.53%
- 9) Raven 1.25%
- 10) Pope John Paul II 0.92%
- 11) Ronald Reagan 0.79%
- 12) Albert Einstein 0.66%

DON'T MESS WITH THE GOV

Be forewarned. Newly elected Governor of Minnesota Jesse Ventura is now "packing heat" via a concealed carry permit. When Ventura was asked if he would be carrying a gun to the Capitol he replied, "That's my business."

If he gets rid of the permit we got to get this guy in the White House.

FCC THROWS IN THE TOWEL ON MICRO BROADCASTERS

Some good news for the thousands of low-power FM broadcasters around the country, many of whom rebroadcast patriot programs. The FCC will now let them operate in peace.

For the past few years the FCC cracked down on mini stations, but with so many around the country, it was like swatting flies at a pig farm. The FCC's approach to mini stations is not unlike the FAA's approach to motorized hang gliders--don't bother us and we won't bother you. This turnaround will create an entirely new class of radio.

There will be three classifications: 1,000-watt stations with an 18 mile signal diameter; 100-watt stations with a 7 mile radius; and 1-to-10 watt stations with a 2-to-4 mile radius.

The new enterprises that are springing up will bring variety to the airwaves long dominated by the licensed stations. How they will ensure that each station broadcasts without interference remains to be seen.

Memo to N.J. Pinelands Commission

Pinelands Commission,

On numerous occasions information has been emphatically brought to this Commission's attention by both individuals of South Jersey and the New Jersey Committee of Safety demonstrating the treasonous anti-American policies brought forth via this Commission. Despite documented facts, this Commission and those who appoint it, prefer to ignore the laws of our land and ally yourselves with the communist movement to establish worldwide socialism!!

You were told that the United Nations is the vehicle being used to implement world socialism. Since its inception it has been communist controlled! There are many references, such as "Interlocking Subversion in Government Departments", Senate Subcommittee report of June 30, 1953. You were told that the UN Charter is not a peace document, but rather, a war document! You were also told that the UN is disarming the world including America through State Department Document 7277. Thus the UN will become the all powerful entity. You were told the UN environmental movement is destroying our economy, our right to mobility, our natural right to property and the Tenth Amendment guaranteeing state sovereignty!

The world headquarters for the so called environmental movement is located at the Presidio, Bldg. 1009, first floor, General Kennedy Rd., San Francisco, CA. Mr. Chairman, one of the leading environmental gurus who is instrumental in developing its aggressive agenda against our property, is the communist dictator, Mikhail Gorbachev. This tyrant, who resides at the Presidio, is personally responsible for the slaughter of millions of his own countrymen! Yet environmental commissions such as the Pinelands Commission are advancing the goals of a very despotic agenda. Why? In December of 1987 Gorbachev concluded his three hour speech to a Soviet communist gathering in this fashion, "In October, 1917, we parted with the old world, rejecting it once and for all. We are moving towards a new world, the world of communism. We shall never turn off that road."

It is impossible for this Commission to separate itself from the communist movement to socialize the world. The facts are there!!

Throughout our nation unelected commissions such as the Pinelands Commission sit as wardens overlooking the king's manor (UN International Biosphere Reserves, including the New Jersey Pinelands), and enforcing the despotic "UN Conference on Human Settlements (Habitat I)". In part the preamble of the Habitat conference states, "Private land ownership is also a principal instrument of accumulation and concentration of wealth and therefore contributes to social injustice, which, if unchecked, may become a major obstacle in the planning and implementation of development schemes."

Repeatedly this commission has been informed that it is violating one of the most basic of all rights, the natural, individual right of possessing property! This fundamental right, which is bestowed upon mankind by the Almighty, is protected through the Fifth Amendment to our Federal Constitution and Article 1 of the New Jersey Constitution. This Commission was asked if it sat upon a higher throne than that of the Almighty, overruling His great wisdom by violating the right to ownership. As usual this unelected, despotic bunch of appointees remained mute, hiding underneath the skirt of this socialist one party political system.

The question remains as to why you are violating the natural rights of mankind? Why is this Commission implementing unrattified United Nations treaties?

It has been said many times that a nation divided against itself cannot stand. This unelected Commission is driving a deep wedge into our nation's heritage, thus supporting in its own way, the fall of this nation.

As an American deeply concerned for the general welfare of my country I am requesting this Commission to reexamine your agenda and how it violates true Americanism.

In the cause for freedom,
Earl G. Dickey

RACIST POLITICIANS WANT YOUR GUNS

By Richard W. Stevens, JPFO

What's the dirty little secret behind "gun control" in America? Whipping and torture.

Buying and selling of human beings. Hate. Fear. Suspicion. Terrorism.

These hints recall the evil days of slavery, and post-Civil War periods of rule of terror. Those who could own human beings as slaves created "gun control" laws to keep the power in their own hands. They could not keep African slaves and their American descendants under lifelong control without making sure the slaves remained unarmed.

Free black people had served honorably and with distinction in the Revolutionary War. Yet under a 1792 federal law, black men could not serve as part of the state militias. In Louisiana, slaves were forbidden to possess guns without the master's permission. Black persons, whether slave or free, had to have a license or a judge's permission before they could carry a firearm in Florida and Delaware. For black people, guns were banned entirely in several states. Florida laws empowered white "citizen patrols" to invade and search black's homes for guns and other weapons. None of these policies applied, of course, to white people.

After the Civil War, "gun control" laws kept black people "in their place." Blacks had to obtain licenses to have guns in Mississippi and Louisiana. Alabama banned all guns in 1866--for blacks. Later, Alabama and Texas placed huge taxes on the sale of handguns, which effectively banned guns for the poor.

Tennessee and Arkansas banned the inexpensive handguns which were the only types that poor black people could afford. South Carolina banned all handguns, except those for police and deputies.

Those American "gun control" laws worked: they disarmed most black people. The Ku Klux Klan and others could freely terrorize black families without fear. [After all] unarmed victims couldn't shoot back. Lynch law ruled, and claimed at least 3,446 lives up through the end of the Civil Rights movement.

Gun registration. Licensing. Judicial permit. Police approval. High taxes on guns and ammunition. Selective gun bans. Total gun bans. Police "gun sweeps" of private homes. Sound familiar?

Today the "gun control" lobby advocates all of these policies. These policies historically worked in the past to disarm a targeted people. These policies will have the same effect now.

Although the gun prohibitionists have dropped the race rhetoric, they use the tried-and-true methods of the slave owners and Klansmen. The same means must achieve the same end: control of the unarmed people.

The slave owners feared that armed slaves would not long tolerate their condition. Modern politicians act like they have the same fear. Are we peaceful American citizens the modern day slaves who must be kept in our place?

FROM THE RIDICULOUS TO THE ABSURD

Lexington, Massachusetts is planning a 225th anniversary of the Battle of Lexington in April of the year 2000. A quarter of a million people are expected to attend, and between 1,000 and 1,500 re-enactors will participate in the battle. There's one problem, however. Massachusetts requires gun locks on all firearms. But gun locks don't fit the large trigger guards of antique firearms, and so the re-enactors will not be allowed to use muskets.

Sen. Susan Fargo and Rep. Jay Kaufman are currently trying to persuade the governor and legislature to amend the law to exempt antique firearms. Said Fargo, "These amendments will allow us to balance the need for responsible gun control legislation while not detracting from events which will celebrate our historic and cultural identity."

ARIZONA LEADS THE NATION IN MILITIAS

According to the FBI Arizona "...has more antigovernment groups than other states, but the agency is powerless to keep tabs on them. The FBI cannot begin an investigation into a militia or patriot-style group until it gets credible evidence that the group is threatening domestic terrorism," said special agent Guadalupe Gonzalez.

The Southern Poverty Law Center reported that "...there are 26 groups in 17 cities and towns and three counties in Arizona."

THE .460 CAL. ROWLAND CARTRIDGE IS READY

We reported in our January issue that Johnny Rowland, host of The Shooting Show, has developed a new cartridge, the .460 Rowland. A kit is now available which includes a drop-in barrel, compensator and slide spring for the 1911 .45 Colt auto, for $275. It will bring the old 1911 (or any Colt 1911 style pistol) up to .44 mag. velocity with less recoil. Some test shots were close to the 1600 feet-per-second mark. Not too shabby! Dan Wesson is already manufacturing a revolver to handle the new cartridge and others will no doubt follow.

No FFL is required and you can order direct from Rowland (and help keep his show on the air). His address is:
327 Irvin Rowland Rd.

Letters to the Editor

Guys,

Sign me up for a couple more years. Maybe by then it will be over one way or the other. Until then keep your powder dry and the ink flowing.

P.S. We in the Sand Creek Sewing Circle thought the readers might like to know that if they are traveling through K.C., Kans., keep your guns hidden and obey the traffic laws. They use traffic stops to get a look in your vehicle; if they see a weapon you are charged with carrying concealed. According to the law in K.C. if it's in a vehicle it's concealed. Even if it's laying on the dash.

Hi,

I collect Militia Patches from around the country and would like your Patch from N.J. In exchange I'll send you our Patch or $5.00 which-ever you prefer.

Ed.: you artists out there, send us a design and we'll have some patches made up.

Dear Editor,

Re: "More Trouble in the NJ Pinelands", NJM Newsletter, February 1999

I urge - you to be more cautious in evaluating the regurgitations of major NJ publications, whenever the matter of Pinelands Commission is reported. Matters of private property are excluded from articles, while those favorable to unelected commissioners and their Comprehensive Management Plan are greatly enhanced for public consumption.

The reporter you quoted also interviewed me. My statements in the Sunday Star Ledger, August 30, 1998, were hardly recognizable. The words "constitution" and "private property" never saw print; however, a two-page color spread of beetles, tree frogs and rattlesnakes, along with flowery euphemisms advocating theft of private property through enviro-regulation was well disguised as "preservation."

The latest "preservation" ploy is "...to allow cranberry farmers to expand their operations" by 300 acres. However the state has long maintained a cozy relationship with certain large growers tied to each other and multinational food processors, at the expense of small growers who one by one have been driven out of business through closed markets. It is no accident that the progeny of these large growers sit in the state Senate and Assembly.

Trenton monkey business is making it impossible for small farms and mon-and-pop businesses to survive, especially in "Urban Enterprise Zones", where the "stakeholder" is held to "sale of only Pinelands resources", while five miles down the road huge warehouse-like businesses proliferate under phantom ownership selling wall-to-wall goods manufactured by slave labor in the Red Chinese People's Army Republic.

DEAR JOHN

John Hinkley
St. Elizabeth Hospital
Washington D.C.

Dear John,

Hillary and I wanted to drop you a short note to tell you how pleased we are with the great strides you are making in your recovery. In our country's new spirit of understanding and forgiveness we want you to know there is a bilateral consensus of compassion and forgiveness throughout the land.

Hillary and I want you to know that no grudge is borne against you for shooting President Reagan. We, above all, are aware of how mental stress and pain could have driven you to such an act of desperation. Hillary and I are confident that you will soon make a complete recovery and return to your family to join the world again as a healthy and productive young man.

Best wishes,

Bill Clinton
